President and Director

BIO:

Mr. Adams has an extensive mining background as well as a diverse wealth of experience in finance, politics, marketing, journalism, and general business.

Company Profile:

A25 Gold Producers Corp., a Canadian-based company in British Columbia, is in the business of commercializing gold and silver properties that had been active mines in the past but were not fully exploited. The properties are located in the Zeballos area near the west coast of Vancouver Island, British Columbia. The properties are grouped into one contiguous area giving A25 Gold Producers significant claims over lands that the provincial mining authority has identified the area as an area that can be expected to meet previous production records

CEOCFO: Mr. Adams, what is the focus at A25?

Mr. Adams: A25 is focused on commercializing gold-bearing properties usually located in British Columbia, Canada. By that, we acquire properties that either have been past producers, or have had some exploration activity that indicate there is a very good chance that there will be commercially viable gold deposits on the property.

CEOCFO: What do you like about BC?

Mr. Adams: There are three reasons we like British Columbia. One is that we are comfortable in particular with the fact that it is in Canada, so we know that the laws (provincial, federal) will be upheld. We know that the property will not be nationalized and there will not be any unscrupulous bureaucrats trying to steal the property out from us, so that is important. Secondly, British Columbia has a long history of solid gold producers. Thirdly, our exploration team that finds the properties knows the province inside out.

CEOCFO: Would you tell us about the specific properties? What is special about them?

Mr. Adams: We have a number of different properties, but the main one is the A25 for which the company is named after and it is located on Vancouver Island. The great part of it is that back in the 1980's Falconbridge Ltd., which had mainly been interested in iron ore, did a significant amount of exploration in the area looking for iron ore. Besides finding iron ore, they actually came across gold (average 16.58 ounces gold per tonne – 1988 results from Footwall Exploration Ltd.)

It is a huge piece of property we have there. This property has significant gold finds where work is showing a range between 15.5 grams (0.45 ounces) per tonne up to 310 grams (9.03 ounces) per tonne of gold. It is a huge discovery finding such a high concentration of gold. We (also) have an additional 17 contiguous mineral claims totaling about 2,700 hectares or 6,672 acres.

CEOCFO: So you have a number of other properties as well?

Mr. Adams: That is true, and they are all around the same area. We think there is a strong and large gold vein through this area on Vancouver Island; therefore, we acquired all the properties around that core area to ensure we reap all of the benefits.

CEOCFO: What is happening on the property today?

Mr. Adams: We have been doing exploration work consisting of drilling and testing samples. We are building towards a major push in the spring (2010). Our geological engineer is going to go with a team to start working along the main veins and establishing the exact concentrations so that we can construct a commercialization plan.

CEOCFO: Is this 100% on property?

Mr. Adams: It is 100% owned by A25 Gold.

CEOCFO: Is that by design?

Mr. Adams: That is by design. At some point, we would like to do a joint venture, but right now, we want to make sure that we control it to the fullest until we can fully quantify the gold on the property.

CEOCFO: Are you still looking for additional properties in the area?

Mr. Adams: We always are!

CEOCFO: What does the financial picture look like for A25 Gold today?

Mr. Adams: We have been out raising money on the European markets. A25 is listed on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange under the symbol ALQ. We have been actively raising capital; the process started a couple weeks ago and is gaining momentum right now. We are feeling confident we will have the necessary capital and can do this year's work which will be about half a million dollars.

CEOCFO: Do you find that people are finally starting to let loose with some money for resources at this point in the economy?

Mr. Adams: Well certainly! Gold has not been that big of a problem for institutional investors. This last month and a half, retail investors in Europe are showing they have started to pick up interest. With gold, when people are talking about $1,500 to $2,000 an ounce and higher, people are interested and that is one of the key reasons we want to keep control now, because that really helps our shareholder value.

CEOCFO: Many companies have very good prospects in your industry. Why

There are not many gold mines where you are going to get concentrations of up to 310 grams per tonne; that is 9 ounces per tonne. So if you are extracting 9 ounces per tonne and gold is getting close to $1,500 an ounce, that is a lot of money. - Jim Adams does A25 stand out, why should people be paying attention to you over and above some of the others?

Mr. Adams: There are not many gold mines where you are going to get concentrations of up to 310 grams per tonne; that is 9 ounces per tonne. So if you are extracting 9 ounces per tonne and gold is getting close to $1,500 an ounce, that is a lot of money.

CEOCFO: What should people reading about A25 Gold Producers Corp. remember most?

Mr. Adams: A25 Gold Producers is a company that is not interested in doing long-term exploration. We are not out for finding groundbreaking work, and finding undiscovered mineral deposits. What we do very well is focus on identifying mining properties where there has been past production, so we know gold has already been mined, or we have very strong geological reports (National Instrument 43-101) by people who are drilling and digging. That makes it a lot faster to (begin) production.
