Quorum Announces Certification by General Motors U.S.

Calgary, Alberta, January 27, 2005 – Quorum Information Technologies Inc. (Quorum) announced today that it is now a GM Certified Dealer Service Provider (DSP) for use of its proprietary software, XSELLERATOR™, in General Motors Dealerships in the United States.

This certification by GM US is a significant step, and it indicates that XSELLERATOR, complies with all the GM US integration requirements. Certification provides assurance to GM's United States based Dealerships that they can make the move to XSELLERATOR software with confidence, knowing that it meets all the requirements set out by GM US. Quorum is also certified by GM Canada, and continues to work with GM Canada on developing new, leading edge business to business integration points between GM Canada and XSELLERATOR. Quorum plans to bring these same leading edge integration points developed with GM Canada to GM US in the near future.

“GM US recognizes that Quorum is bringing an integrated approach to the marketplace powered by new technology, which is why we are the first company in over 5 years to be certified. Now that we are certified on the basic integration in the US we want to bring our next generation integration points that we have developed with GM Canada to the US,” said Maury Marks, President and CEO of Quorum. “We believe with our technology we are the system of choice for Dealerships and we are becoming the integration partners of choice for GM on both sides of the border.”

About Quorum:

Quorum (TSX V: QIS) is a successful information technology company that develops, markets, implements and supports its own software products for specific vertical markets.
