“We are very pleased with the updated evaluation and research report just released by Prime Equity Research, LLC. Their report identifies the very significant inherent and, as yet, unrealized value in our Independence Project and in the Company as a whole. I encourage all of our current investors and other potential investors to review the report because Prime Equity draws some very telling comparisons between GNMT and other comparable firms in the junior gold space. We feel their firm has properly identified many of the central strengths of our firm and management team”, stated Daniel J. Forbush, President and CEO of General Metals Corporation. “We are making important progress at the Independence Project and this report reaffirms the values that all of us believe will be realized there.”
